Friday was not the brightest of days, but the gloom came to a sudden end when a blazing sunset burst over the western rim of the Poconos as lone tree stood sentinel before parking

Watergate sprouts new tentacles

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Watergate scandal dramatically widened Friday as former presidential counsel John W. Dean, fired Monday by Nixon in a general White House housecleaning, disclosed the existence of the records in a motion filed in U. S. District Court here. His attorneys, turning over the keys of the safe deposit box to the court, said the records consisted of a 43-page document and eight supplementary papers.

At the same time a federal grand jury in Orlando, Fla., indicted Donald H. Segretti, a Nixon re-election campaign operative and alleged political saboteur, on charges of conspiring to distribute phony campaign literature last year that falsely defamed two Democratic presidential candidates.

President Nixon meantime announced the selection of Gen. Alexander M. Haig, a top diplomatic aide and trouble-shooter, to replace at least temporarily ousted White House chief of staff H. R. Haldeman.

Dean, in a general White House housecleaning, disclosed the existence of the records in a motion filed in U. S. District Court here. His attorneys, turning over the keys of the safe deposit box to the court, said the records consisted of a 43-page document and eight supplementary papers.

The motion said they were removed from Dean's White House office before Monday and placed in the safe deposit box Thursday to prevent any "illegitimate destruction" of them.

It has been widely reported Dean has drafted a summary of the activities of the Committee for the Re-election of the President, including the burglary and bugging of Democratic national headquarters at the Watergate apartment complex, political espionage operations, and an alleged cover-up of the scandal.

He is said also to have preserved copies of materials implicating Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman, ousted White House domestic affairs adviser, in an alleged cover-up operation.

In Los Angeles it was disclosed at the Pentagon Papers trial of Daniel Ellsberg that E. Howard Hunt Jr. has testified he broke into the office of Ellsberg's psychiatrist on the orders of "the people who employed him," including Egil "Bud" Krogh, then a White House assistant.

Hunt, one of the original seven convicted Watergate burglars, had earlier this week given the secret testimony to a Washington grand jury conducting a renewed investigation of the whole Watergate affair.

The California court requested the testimony to see if it indicated the government's evidence against Ellsberg might be tainted.

Krogh headed a White House group whose job was to stop leaks of executive information, such as the Pentagon Papers, to the press. Named under secretary of the Transportation Department in January, he took an indefinite leave of absence Wednesday when his name surfaced in the Ellsberg trial.

Earlier Friday Haldeman and Ehrlichman, expressing belief Nixon will be cleared of all suspicion regarding the Watergate scandal, underwent extensive questioning by the staff of the Senate Watergate investigating committee.

It was disclosed earlier this week at the Los Angeles trial, in which Ellsberg is one of the two defendants, that Ehrlichman testified Nixon ordered him to investigate the leak of the Pentagon Papers and that he had hired Hunt and G. Gordon Liddy, another of the seven Watergate conspirators, to carry out the inquiry.

Trial Judge Matt Byrne turned over to the Pentagon Papers defense sections of the transcript of the testimony Hunt gave to the Watergate grand jury earlier this week, saying:

"Hunt, at the direction of the people who employed him, came to Los Angeles, cased the psychiatrist's office, photographed it, and made plans for the burglary. He discussed the burglary with his superiors, was given authorization, and returned to Los Angeles to execute it."

Ehrlichman, who was the President's top adviser on domestic affairs, spent five hours with the staff of the investigating panel headed by Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C.

Haldeman, who arrived with him, went into the committee room later.

Luck of the draw

STROUDSBURG — To all those of you who think you might have a winner in Thursday's Lucky 7 drawing, look again. The winning combination printed Friday in The Record was incorrectly transmitted by United Press International. The correct combination should have been: 870 — 294 — 916. We hope the error creates more winners than it costs.

'Propaganda' funds called illegal

WASHINGTON — The General Accounting Office (GAO) said Friday the White House had violated the law by using federal funds to finance a propaganda campaign against 15 bills pending in Congress. The GAO, an investigative arm of Congress, said that a kit — titled "Battle of the Budget, 1973" and sent to administration officials — violated a 1972 law which forbids the use of appropriated funds "for publicity or propaganda purposes designed to support or defeat legislation pending before Congress."

Soviets menace China border

PEKING — Diplomatic sources here said the Soviet Union is stepping up its war of nerves with China through massive troop reinforcements along the border. During the past few months, the sources said, the Soviet Union has added about 50,000 soldiers to its garrisons in the Asian republics and Mongolia and now has a total of 45 divisions in that area.

Jet rams Cambodian barracks

PHNOM PENH — An American fighter-bomber crashed and exploded in flames at the edge of Phnom Penh's Pochentong airport Friday, destroying a heavily populated area about half the size of a city block. The two crewmen aboard the A7 Corsair jet parachuted from the aircraft before it crashed, but there were casualties in the area of barracks-type quarters occupied by Cambodian army engineers and their families. Two bodies were found in the rubble shortly after the flames were extinguished, but police expected the toll to go higher.

Bombers strike in Belfast

BELFAST — Six bombs exploded Friday in Northern Ireland, three of them in the capital, in the first series of bombing attacks in the province in more than a month. Employees of two of the business targets of the bombers carried the bombs into the street, where they later exploded and caused only minor damage. None of the six bombs caused casualties.

Nixon gives Haig top staff position

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI) — President Nixon Friday named Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., the Army's second-ranking general and a well-traveled presidential envoy, to succeed the deposed H. R. Haldeman as White House chief of staff.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the appointment was an "interim one" but left open the possibility that the 48-year-old former troop commander would be permanently named to the post, one of the most powerful in government.

At the same time, Ziegler said California industrialist David Packard, who served for 35 months as the number two man in the Defense Department, was the "leading candidate" to succeed Elliot L. Richardson as secretary of defense.

The announcements were part of the governmental shakeup resulting from the Watergate scandal and came as the President considered what further White House changes were needed as a result of the resignations of Haldeman, domestic adviser John D. Ehrlichman and counsel John W. Dean III.

All departed last week under a cloud of suspicion for complicity in the Watergate affair and other illegal political espionage.

The change will put Haig, who rose from colonel to four-star general and vice chief of staff of the Army in less than four years, on a par with Henry A. Kissinger, his former boss on the National Security Council staff.

Haig met with Nixon for about 45 minutes in Washington Thursday, then moved into the corner White House suite formerly occupied by Haldeman just a few steps from the President's Oval Office.

As coordinator of the White House staff, he will control more than anybody except the President himself whom and what Nixon sees. Haldeman's role in this gate-keeper capacity earned him the reputation as one of the most powerful and controversial men in Washington before his fall.

Ziegler made it clear that Nixon was considering a more elaborate restructuring of his top-level staff which could alter Haig's role.

Packard became deputy defense secretary under Melvin R. Laird during the first week of the Nixon administration and returned to his California electronics firm in December, 1971. He also met with Nixon in Washington Thursday to discuss the Pentagon job, Ziegler said.

Richardson, appointed Defense Secretary at the beginning of the second administration, was shifted to attorney general last week to head up the Watergate investigation.

Ziegler earlier expressed reluctance to undertake the Pentagon job but apparently changed his mind under presidential pressure, and formal announcement of his nomination was expected in the near future.

"I would say he is the leading candidate," Ziegler said.

Packard was active in political campaigning in California in Nixon's behalf last year. By far the wealthiest member of the first Nixon administration, he lost millions of dollars by putting his holdings in Hewlett-Packard in a trust during his government service.

Psychiatrist's office yielded little

W.H. aide OK'd burglary

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — E. Howard Hunt told the Watergate grand jury he was authorized by White House aide Egil "Bud" Krogh to burglarize Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office because FBI agents no longer were trained in making break-ins, it was revealed Friday at the Pentagon Papers trial. Hunt said the burglary proved fruitless.

Earlier, U.S. District Court Judge Matt Byrne turned down a defense motion to dismiss all charges in the Pentagon Papers trial on grounds the administration had approached him about becoming director of the FBI.

The judge turned over to the defense portions of the transcript of testimony that Hunt, a former agent for the Central Intelligence Agency, gave earlier in the week to the Washington grand jury probing the Watergate affair.

Defense attorney Charles Nesson, reading a summary of the 38-page transcript into the record, quoted Hunt as saying, "...Krogh suggested that a judgment should be made as to whether he (Ellsberg) could be effectively prosecuted due to his peculiar background.

"We thought the best source would be the file of the psychiatrist who had been analyzing Ellsberg. I suggested that we get the FBI to burglarize the office."

Hunt said that G. Gordon Liddy, another of the White House "plumbers" assigned to check security leaks, had told him that the FBI had few agents trained in breaking and entering.

Krogh then had authorized him to make a "preliminary vulnerability and feasibility study" of the burglary, Hunt said. He said he had done "what I thought was a rather thorough and professional job" photographing the outside of the psychiatrist's office with a camera issued to him by the CIA.

Jobless rate hits snag, hangs at five per cent

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's unemployment rate hung stubbornly at 5 per cent in April, and the recent rapid rise in jobholders slowed to a standstill, the Labor Department reported Friday.

Despite the current business boom which has assembly lines

Mideast clashes cease

BEIRUT (UPI) — Armies of guerrilla clashes that broke out in south Lebanon Friday despite proclamation of a cease-fire came to an end in the evening and Beirut was quiet as riot patrols crisscrossed its streets to enforce a third night of curfew.

The cease-fire was aimed at stopping fighting that had threatened for two days to plunge Lebanon into a war pitting Arab against Arab.

and immediately began talks aimed at consolidating a ceasefire.

April, also the same as a month earlier, the department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said.

After fluctuating around 6 per cent of the work force through 1971, unemployment slowly declined last year, levelled off near 5 per cent last fall and has refused to budge since then. A steady and sizeable increase in the job force is the biggest reason why the jobless rate has refused to come down further, the administration says.

The BLS said the number of wage earners increased 2.6 million in the last 12 months, with especially sizeable gains coming in February and March. The rise stopped in April.

The unemployment rate for Vietnam veterans was unchanged at 6.2 per cent.

Martha Mitchell...just intuition

Martha: 'Things weren't proper'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Martha Mitchell told a battery of attorneys she had no access to any documents connected with the Watergate affair, but she added her woman's intuition told her "things weren't proper," it was disclosed Friday.

The wife of former attorney general John N. Mitchell also accused the Nixon administration of "half crucifying me" and spreading rumors that she was insane.

In an often rambling, 78-page sworn deposition in the Democratic party's $6.4 million civil suit against the Watergate conspirators released Friday, Mrs. Mitchell said: "I had no access to paper or any type of material.

"I operate on woman's intuition and perhaps my intuition has been the big thing that has gone along with me so long that I realize that there were things that were not proper, that were going on, but I could not put my hand on them, in any way shape or form—I had no way to do it," she said.

Mrs. Mitchell testified under oath for over two hours Thursday before 12 attorneys.

The tiny southern belle sat at the head of a long conference table Thursday clutching a worn, childhood Bible and said, "If I had any personal knowledge of the Watergate, gentlemen, I would have done something about it long ago."

Dean hides secret papers in bank; court given keys

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John W. Dean III, fired this week as President Nixon's legal counsel, said Friday he placed classified documents in a safe deposit box because he feared the papers might be stolen from his White House office or illegally destroyed.

In a motion in U.S. District Court, Dean's attorneys asked the court clerk to take possession of two keys to the safe deposit box. The box reportedly contains a 43-page document and eight supplementary papers placed there Thursday.

FBI agents Tuesday began guarding the files of Dean and ousted presidential aides H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman on a 24-hour basis.

But the court motion said Dean removed the papers from his office before he was dismissed on Monday.

As Nixon's personal counsel, Dean had access to numerous confidential documents. But the motion gave no firm indication of the nature of the classified papers except that they somehow are related to the Senate investigation of the bugging of Democratic headquarters at the Watergate.

The motion said Dean was acting in accordance with a request from Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield on Jan. 16 that he not destroy or dispose of any records related to the Senate investigation of the Watergate break-in, political sabotage, campaign fund records, or material developed by government investigators working on the case.

Dean took the documents, according to the motion, prior to his dismissal "anticipating the reasonable likelihood of either (a) covert break-in to his office before his termination by persons unknown, or (b) sealing of files after his termination by government agents and thereby run the risk of illegitimate destruction of the documents..."

Dean received secret FBI files last year in his role as the President's investigator of the Watergate incident. Dean had told Nixon that White House personnel were not involved.

The safe deposit box is in the Alexandria, Va., National Bank near where Dean resides.

Copies of the motion filed by attorney Charles Norman Shaffer on behalf of Dean were delivered to Mansfield and assistant U.S. attorneys.

Privilege to protect Nixon?

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI) — New White House guidelines on executive privilege made public Friday raised the possibility that President Nixon's aides might be forbidden to tell a federal grand jury if they ever discussed the Watergate scandal with him.

The guidelines direct past and present members of Nixon's staff to answer all questions except those concerning "conversations with the President, conversations among themselves involving communication with the President and as to presidential papers."

Nixon and some of his predecessors in the White House have invoked the doctrine of executive privilege to claim that certain discussions or dealings between them and close aides were highly confidential and not subject to scrutiny by Congress or its committees.

Leonard Garment, the newly appointed

White House counsel who prepared the guidelines issued Friday, said they would apply to questions posed by the FBI, the federal grand jury and the Senate's select Watergate committee headed by Sen. Sam Ervin, D-N.C.

The White House press secretary, Ronald L. Ziegler, declined to elaborate on the guidelines or to say whether privilege would be invoked if a former staff member were asked whether Nixon had been informed of the bugging of the Democratic national headquarters or any subsequent efforts to cover up the crime.

The guidelines indicated that Garment will not attend FBI or grand jury interrogation of past or present White House staffers, ending a controversial precedent established by John W. Dean, who was fired as presidential counsel last Monday and who conducted an investigation of the Watergate incident for Nixon last summer.

Counters Shapp proposal

Hospitals file own health bill

HARRISBURG (UPI) — The Hospital Association of Pennsylvania Friday unveiled its unveiled its answer to the Shapp administration's bill which would give the state broad powers to regulate the health care system.

The association presented the bill to a House subcommittee investigating the need for hospital controls.

James R. Neely, the association's executive vice president, said the organization submitted its own legislation because the bill proposed by Gov. Milton J. Shapp is "unreasonable."

The association's bill would give the state power to approve or reject hospital rates and construction programs and insure quality health care.

The Shapp administration's bill gives the state those powers but it also allows the state to intervene in the management of hospitals, the association said.

"The legislation we are suggesting," Neely said, "provides for appropriate governmental controls while at the same time preserves the right of the voluntary health care system to manage its own affairs," Neely said.

"The administration's proposal (gives) the Commonwealth the authority to manage every health care institution in the state. This is a shocking thought considering the difficulty the Commonwealth has had in running the present state-owned institutions."

Neely said the association objects to many provisions of Gov. Shapp's bill, but the most important objections include:

- line-by-line control of hospital budgets..
- creation of a Health Advocate General.
- authority to mandate putting consumers on governing boards.

South Vietnam warns North on violations

SAIGON (UPI) — A government spokesman said Friday South Vietnam will reconsider its position on the cease-fire agreement if Communists "try to violate and endanger" Cambodia and Laos.

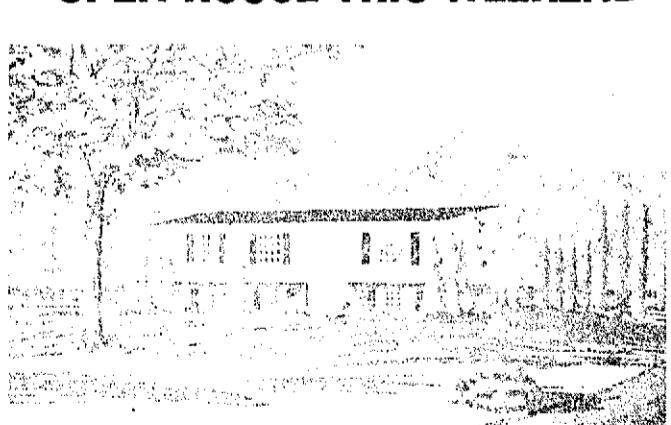

Earlier Friday, the North Vietnamese Army newspaper, Quan Doi Nhan Dan, accused the United States of sending reconnaissance planes over South Vietnam "in brazen violation of the Paris agreement."

The Saigon government spokesman, clarifying previous statements by Foreign Minister Tran Van Lam, declined to answer newsmen's questions directly, however, about whether South Vietnam might intervene militarily in either of the neighboring countries.

"If the Communists try to violate and endanger our two neighboring countries, the Republic of Vietnam will have to reconsider her policy toward implementation of the cease-fire," the spokesman said.

The minister (Lam) did not say the Republic of Vietnam would intervene in Cambodia or

GOP 'spy' indicted on letter

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — Donald H. Segretti, an alleged political spy reportedly paid with President Nixon's campaign funds, was indicted by a federal grand jury Friday on charges of conspiring to circulate phony campaign literature accusing two Democratic presidential candidates of sexual misconduct.

The bogus literature, according to the two-count indictment, was in the form of a letter on Sen. Edmund S. Muskie's stationery which made the allegations against two of Muskie's opponents, Sens. Henry M. Jackson and Hubert H. Humphrey, during the Florida presidential primary last year.

Segretti is a 31-year-old Los Angeles attorney who the FBI has said received at least $30,000 in GOP campaign funds from Nixon's personal attorney, Herbert W. Kalmbach, on orders from former White House appointments secretary Dwight Chapin. Segretti was indicted along with George A. Hearing of Tampa, an accountant.

Segretti surrendered to federal agents in Los Angeles a few hours later and was taken before a U.S. magistrate for arraignment, the FBI reported.

Each was charged with conspiracy and with violating federal election statutes requiring campaign literature to list the names of persons or organizations distributing it.

Segretti, reported to have been hired by Chapin, is alleged to have been among more than 50 undercover agents who engaged in political espionage and sabotage against Democrats during the 1972 presidential election.

Kapleau said hearings would continue at Harrisburg until they move to Pittsburgh about May 18. He said Philadelphia hearings should begin the week of May 21.

Indians win White House concession; delegation set

PINE RIDGE, S.D. (UPI) — The White House has agreed to send a delegation to the Pine Ridge Indian reservation to discuss treaty issues if the militants occupying Wounded Knee will lay down their arms by May 11, government negotiators said Friday.

Kent Frizzell, the principal government negotiator, said he obtained the White House commitment as a token of good faith in the government's effort to end the 66-day-old occupation of the hamlet without further bloodshed.

There was no immediate indication that the American Indian Movement (AIM) members and sympathizers barricaded at the historic settlement would accept the new federal proposal and end the stalemate that has transformed the reservation into two opposing armed camps since Feb. 27.

Frizzell, who is solicitor of the Interior Department, made it plain in an announcement at a news conference that the offer was contingent upon the Indians and white militants in Wounded Knee surrendering their arms and submitting to immediate arrest if warrants are outstanding against them.

The arrangement was worked out in a series of telephone calls between Frizzell and the White House. Negotiations between the federal negotiators and AIM leaders in Wounded Knee were suspended Friday while the talks with Washington were held.

HARRISBURG (UPI) — Milk Marketing Board Chairman Harry E. Kapleau said Friday statewide pricing hearings will begin next Thursday in Harrisburg and continue later in Pittsburgh and Philadelphia.

"The board will take testimony at three locations — Harrisburg, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia — and will afford all interested parties, including dealers and consumers, an opportunity to be heard," Kapleau said.

Kapleau said the decision for new hearings was made after Commonwealth Court struck down a two-cent per quart increase in the price farmers are paid.

The increase was granted after February hearings in Harrisburg at which testimony was limited to farmers. Milk dealers challenged the order in court and won.

Kapleau said hearings would continue at Harrisburg until they move to Pittsburgh about May 18. He said Philadelphia hearings should begin the week of May 21.

Rumble strip tells drivers of dangerous intersection

Mount Pocono Bureau

MOUNT POCONO — Motorists traveling east on Rte. 940 into Mount Pocono will be alerted by a rumbling sound that they are approaching a dangerous intersection.

A rumble strip has been constructed on the approach to the five-way intersection of Rtes. 940, 811, and 196.

From January 1969 to November 1972 there were 87 traffic accidents resulting in approximately $100,000 in property damages at the intersection.

Rt. 940 East traveling into Mount Pocono is a throughway from Interstate 81 to Mount Pocono. Until September of last year it had a 55-mile-per-hour speed limit ending abruptly in the dead end at the intersection.

Rt. 940 East traveling into Mount Pocono is a throughway from Inter-

In 1970 the borough council called for action to reduce the speed limit as the throughway get closer to the busy intersection.

Up Milford Way

By NORMAN LEHDE

It has been quite a while since Milford saw as many candidates for the office of borough councilman as will appear on the Republican Primary ballot on May 15. No less than seven persons are in the battle to fill four council positions and someone has suggested that a special lottery be run based on the results.

Three of the candidates are incumbents. However only one of them, Council President Merritt B. Quinn, has ever previously been elected to office. The other two, Gregory Moyer and Thomas Stephenson, became councilmen by being appointed to fill unexpired terms. This means the vote getting power of these two men is unknown since this will be the first time they will be seeking voter approval. In the past President Quinn has always run very strongly.

Cubs hold 'Fiesta' night

Mount Pocono Bureau

CRESCE — Parents and guests of Cub Pack 89 of Barrett were treated to a night in Mexico when the Cubs met recently at Barrett Elementary Center, Cresco.

Cub Scouts transformed into living Mexican jumping beans (only doing their usual thing), huge sombrero's overshadowed small cub scout heads, bull fights and the Mexican Hat Dance prevailed as the meeting's theme "Fiesta" was carried out.

Each Den put on a skit, related to the theme. Den Three presented "Boo, the Bullfight;" Den Four jumped as "Super Jumping Beans;" Den Six did the "Mexican Hat Dance" with fervor; and Den One portrayed "Sticks and Stones Will Break My Bones;" and Den Two skillfully did the "Mexican Shawl Dance."

One of the highlights of the evening was Webelos Den Two's presentation of a handmade puppet theater with puppets inspired by their recent trip to the Martins Creek Power Generating Plant. Characters included Reddy Kilo-watt.

In a candle light ceremony Cub master Gordon Shaller presented awards to the following Cubs: Kevin Jumper, Bob Cat and Asst. Denner; Ralph Fish, Wolf Badge; Ricky Dunlap, Bear Badge, two Silver Arrow Points and Denner Badge; John Speicher, Silver Arrow Point; Drew Dunlap and Chip Higgins, Asst. Denner; Tony Smyth and Jim Hart, Denner.

Tom McCain, Webelos leader, Den One, presented activity badges in Engineering to David Drummond, Rudy Haab, Garry McCain, Ricky Monihan, Chip Higgins and Jim Rinehart.

Bob Kingdom, Boy Scout and Den Chief Webelos Den Two received his Den Chief Cord.

Webelos Den Two had handicraft on display which included bookends of wood and tapped aluminum and rubber band guns.

Both Webelos Dens joined in a "Grand Howl," led by Tom McCain for Evan Hardy, graduating into Boy Scouts.

Webelos Den Two received the attendance award for having most parents present.

The next leaders meeting will be held at 8 p.m., Monday, May 7 at the home of Charles Wilkinson in Cresco.

Pack meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m., Friday, May 18 at the Barrett Elementary Center, Cresco. The theme will be "Things That Grow."

Bangor Water Company may merge with 14 others

BANGOR — The Bangor Water Company may merge with 14 other area water companies, all part of the American Water Works System, to form the new Keystone Water Company.

American Water Works has petitioned the Public Utility Commission in Harrisburg for the merger. The company is the largest investor-owned water system in the country.

Keystone Water Works will serve 62 communities with 36,172 customers and a population of 205,615.

The merger, said Burr, who will be president of the new utility, will help the utility receive long-term financing for improvements at lower interest rates.

Bangor Water Company presently serves 3,039 customers and a population of 10,540. Investments of the company, in 1970, totaled $1,695,655 and the annual cost of operation was $167,969. In 1970, eight persons were employed by the company and 53 miles of water mains in service.

John Connally same politician

If there ever was any doubt that John Connally was a consummate politician, his switch Wednesday to the Republican Party should remove it. At once.

Connally's timing was excellent, his rhetoric flawless and his posture superb. Had he donned a GOP mantle earlier, say right after Nixon's landslide victory in November, he might have been considered a front-runner.

But he didn't jump then. He waited to see what would happen with Watergate (another bit of evidence; Connally is too good a politician to think the scandal could be other than spectacular). And, with the GOP in a blue funk about the whole affair, he joined ranks, hoping "to help out the party in its time of trouble."

That's just beautiful. Long-term Republicans will not be able to say now that Connally is johnnie-come-lately hoping to cash in on America's shift to center. Instead, he will be thought of as a man who joined the party when it was in trouble, swinging his popularity and talents into the battle to recover the public's confidence.

He also told reporters (who quite naturally asked about his ambitions for 1976) he had no desire at this time to return to the nation's capital. "I don't want to go up there again. I haven't been out long enough for it to suit me," he said.

It has been a long time since we've seen it, what with declared candidates three years and more before a presidential election, but that's the classic way to run for the top job: wait and deny ambitions until the fever is hot, interest high and opponents are off balance.

Connally's new Republicanism and his chances for the 1976 nomination look a lot brighter than John Lindsay's did in 1972 and do now. The difference is in the man. A pretty face is not enough. It takes brains and a feel for the game, too.

Connally has both in plenty. That makes him a formidable opponent for Spiro Agnew three years hence. And it makes him a solid gain for the GOP and a grievous loss for the Democrats, who haven't too many attractive potential candidates in the fold right now.

War on mosquitoes

Area mosquitoes are in for a long hot summer.

Last year, they romped and zoomed as unchallenged masters of the soft evening breezes. In the process, they ruined many a weekend barbecue and outdoor gala. Who feels gay and party-ish in a heavy coat of off, after all?

But this year, the two most heavily infested areas — East Stroudsburg and Stroud Township — will be sprayed in a concerted attack on the pests.

Normally, we don't approve of wholesale spraying for any pest (short of epidemic concentrations, that is) because such attacks seem to do more harm to the pests' natural predators than to the malevolent insects themselves. They mess up the ecology, and that's not good.

But this time the fire companies of both municipalities will do the job, using truck-mounted spraying techniques. The good part about that is that the spraying is localized and directed at the breeding places for mosquitoes, rather than on the trees, shrubs and bushes of a general area. This way, the pesticide hits the pests that are the intended targets, and not anything else that happens along.

We encourage this approach. We also encourage people bothered by mosquitoes to supplement the spraying with some housekeeping details — clearing out rubbish, old tires and draining swampy areas, for example — that will cut down on breeding places for the little stingers.

Between the two, this should be a better summer for folks who like to take their ease outdoors on those warm evenings. We can almost smell the steaks charcoal-broiling now. If meat prices come down, that is.

Letters to the Editor

Youth need guidance

Editor, The Record:

Your editorial on "Acts of religion" caused this Reformed minister to shudder with disbelief at your suggestion that youth should be encouraged to do a thing in conflict with principles, because it seems to be practical.

Surely no reasonable adult would ever want to be condemned for breaking the spirit of a youngster, by diminishing his enthusiasm and free spirit. However, if a tot is found enthusiastically breaking up things with a hammer, his misguided effort had better be channeled as swiftly as possible into constructive efforts.

Even older youth, to say nothing of adults as well, need to be guided away from destructiveness and channeled into building up the kingdom of God. It would be better if youths would walk for life, not for the agencies that dispense death, and struggle to stop the killing.

I insist that you have reversed the priorities when you say that we are discouraged "when principles of a religion conflict with the opportunities of practical religion." The only religion worth practicing is one that is built upon principles and directed by them. If in judgement an opportunity, no matter how practical it seems, is found in conflict with those principles, the principle must prevail.

Otherwise it is no principle, since a principle is itself the norm by which a course of action is to be decided. Life on!

Can't stop Nixon

Editor, The Record:

It appears that no account of letter-writing, vehement protest, outrage, or denunciations of any kind can stay the hand of Richard Nixon as he conducts his personal, illegal, Constitution-defying, bomb-mad war in Southeast Asia. Day after bloody day, Cambodian and Laotian rice farmers lose their lives, families, homes, fields, crops and forests.

Our Senators and Congressmen (Scott, Schweiker, McDade, Rooney) do nothing to stop it, and the American people yawn in the face of it all. Nothing seems to get the message across to the American public that this is a moral outrage.

Recently in Time magazine, a theologian made the point that a Christian pacifist must be willing to take up a baseball bat if there is no other way to stop a man from savagely beating a child. The converse of this situation is equally true and self-evident: If the only way we can prevent a Communist takeover of a land is to bomb the land and everything in it, then, morally speaking, we cannot prevent the takeover.

There are worse things than a Communist form of government, and worst of all is saturation bombing of civilian populations.

It is time we woke up to the fact that God did not give the United States sole monopoly on the Richard Nixons of the world. If we do not get the message and raise an outcry that will be heard by every one of our so-called public servants in the Congress, then we may well have to learn the hard way.

Perhaps we will be shaken out of our sleep one day by bombs dropping on our own land, sent there by a Russian or Chinese version of Nixon, anxious to prove his or her mettle not against an agrarian small country, but against a first-rate military power.

$4,100 in Coffee Day

Editor, The Record:

Please accept the most sincere words of appreciation from all members of the "Coffee Day" Committee for the help you and your newspaper gave to make BUCK-A-CUP a success.

It could not have succeeded without the contribution of your communication media. We wish also to thank all the members of your staff who guided and supported us in every possible way.

Coffee Day will have increased our budget approximately $4,100. This will enable the Monroe County Easter Seal Society to expand their services of care, treatment, and rehabilitation. This project, in conjunction with the annual Easter Seal Drive, has become an important part of our means of raising funds.

Again, thank you for your help in making B-A-C an important adjunct to the Easter Seal Campaign.

Watergate worries Kissinger

WASHINGTON — The White House staff is in a state of shell shock. But no one is more distressed over the Watergate scandal than Henry Kissinger. He's afraid it will weaken President Nixon at the same time that Chariman Leonid Brezhnev is gaining strength inside the Kremlin.

World leaders have a keen sense of power. The President came out of the 1972 election with a landslide victory. This not only meant he would be President for four more years but would be in a strong position to choose his successor. He had reached a pinnacle of power that made him more formidable in foreign affairs.

But now his power has been eroded by the Watergate scandal. World leaders have been quick to sense that the President is slipping, that he is losing his authority to commit the United States.

This coincides with a shake-up inside the Kremlin, which strengthens Brezhnev. He suddenly is stronger and the President weaker for their next face-to-face confrontation in Washington.

The last time they met in Moscow, most of the weight was on Nixon's side of the bargaining table. Those who have had access to the secret accounts of the summit meeting say the President profoundly impressed his hosts. Informant guides still point out to visitors the building where President Nixon stayed.

He also made a triumphant stop in Warsaw on his way home. The Poles have roped off and made a museum of the room where he signed a Polish-American pact, and have bolted down the chair in which he sat. From Moscow to Peking and Warsaw to Budapest, the Communist leaders talk only of cooperation with Richard Nixon.

They still tend to dismiss the Watergate scandal as an internal matter. But insofar as it weakens the President's authority, Watergate will hamper his conduct of foreign affairs. At the next summit meeting, the weight may be on Brezhnev's side of the table.

LAST ACT: Although Republican campaigners squandered hundreds of thousands of dollars on the Watergate follies, they have balked at paying the Smithsonian Institution a modest $42,000 for the use of its halls as inaugural ballrooms.

Ironically, Watergate figure Jeb Magruder's last act for President Nixon was to try to reduce the $42,000 bill. On April 26, he called Smithsonian official Richard Ault and demanded: "These items seem to be a little high. How come?"

The world famous museum had allowed the Republicans to use two of its exhibit halls for inaugural receptions and balls. Among the dinosaurs, ancient locomotives and other extinct animals and machines, the GOP hoity-toity waltzed and "twisted." The $42,000 covered the cost of moving exhibits, cleaning up after the celebrating Republicans and for loss of revenue from the museum's shops.

Ault checked with his estimators but, as he told us, "we're not running the Shoreham hotel annex." So he backed his staff's original bill.

"The account rendered," he wrote Magruder, "is indeed nominal and very much in line with normal practices for events held in the Smithsonian buildings."

Footnote: As a sign of the hectic times in Washington and the uncertain tenure of the former high and mighty, Magruder asked Ault to communicate with him at his home address. It was a wise precaution. The day after his talk with Ault, Magruder resigned from the Commerce Department job he had held while he tried to clear up inaugural affairs.

The pranksters

As if the Watergate mess were not depressing enough, we are now being set up for a lot of lugubrious handwringing about the "sabotage" of last year's Democratic primary campaigns. Recently, for example, James Reston went on and on in a somber vein about the "calls in the night, the dirty tricks and the sabotage against Senators Muskie, McGovern and Humphrey." He viewed the "fragile process" of democracy as gravely imperiled by these things.

Even with Nixon's first steps to cleanse the stain of Watergate from his Administration, confidence in the President and in his leadership will not be easily restored. It will be difficult for him in the future to appeal over the head of Congress to generate public support which for a considerable period, at least, may not be readily forthcoming. Nixon must appeal directly to Congress, deal directly with Congress and invite congressional advice if he is to get congressional assent.

The President has no acceptable alternative. He wants and needs new and enlarged powers to carry forward crucial trade negotiations. Congress will give them to him only if it is persuaded that the President will fairly heed Congress' views as well as his own.

He will be going to Europe this fall to try to work out a new Atlantic Charter. He can succeed only if the European leaders see that the President is speaking for the whole American government, not just for himself.

Nixon wants to keep a strong military presence in Western Europe, reach a compromise with the Soviets on offensive nuclear weapons, extend favorable trade terms to Communist countries, expand on East-West detente and build improved relations with the People's Republic of China.

The President will need congressional consent to achieve much of this and to get it he will have to welcome congressional advice. One cannot be had without the other.

Foreign policy

It seems to me that the president has every incentive to go two-thirds of the way to do his part to recreate the climate, the machinery and the substance of that bipartisan approach to foreign policy which prevailed almost continuously under Presidents Franklin D. Roosevelt, Harry Truman and Dwight Eisenhower.

The President will need congressional consent to achieve much of this and to get it he will have to welcome congressional advice. One cannot be had without the other.

Markin time

We need to judge all nature right.
So we can get the best effect.
It is not something we should fight,
But something to love and direct.

'Waltz King'

Here, Wilson is seen as the composer-conductor in four periods of his life, spanning more than 50 years in which he reigned as the 'Waltz King'.

Schaefer 500 at Pocono just keeps on growing

STROUDSBURG — The Schaefer 500 at Pocono Festival, now in its third year, has grown far beyond the expectations originally envisioned for the Race Festival.

"We have found it necessary to set up a Board of Governors this year," says Marilyn Kane, Festival Director. "The work involved in putting on this ten day Festival is overwhelming."

According to Mrs. Kane, more than 120 volunteers were required to put on the various functions of the 1972 Festival and more than that will be involved this year.

The Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau, original sponsors of the Festival, have turned it over to a local citizens board to run for 1973 and future years. "We feel that the entire community has a stake in the future of the Festival," says Robert Uggioni, Executive Director of the PMBV.

The Schaefer 500 at Pocono Festival hosts an Opening Day event at the track; the Pole Position Dinner for the driver winning the best race position; a Fashion Show luncheon for the ladies; a Mens and Ladies golf tournament; the Festival Ball; the Victory Celebration and crowns a Festival-Race Queen selected from 33 semi-finalists (one for each qualifying car on race-day).

Memberships will be sold for $25 and will give the purchaser an opportunity to have pit passes and complete track credentials for all the days of practice and qualifications. The donor will also receive a sticker to put on his home or business window indicating his support of the Festival.

Membership applications are available now at the Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau.

The courses, according to David C. Johnson, dean of the school, are generally beginning level courses. The program is a continuation of an experiment which was begun this spring.

Among the courses to be offered are "Biblical Literature," "General Psychology," "Introduction to Anthropology," "Speech Communication," "French Masterpieces in Translation II," "The Masks of Man," "Black Humanism," "Developmental Psychology" and "Introduction to Sociology."

Persons interested in attending the evening courses should contact the admissions office at the college for further details.

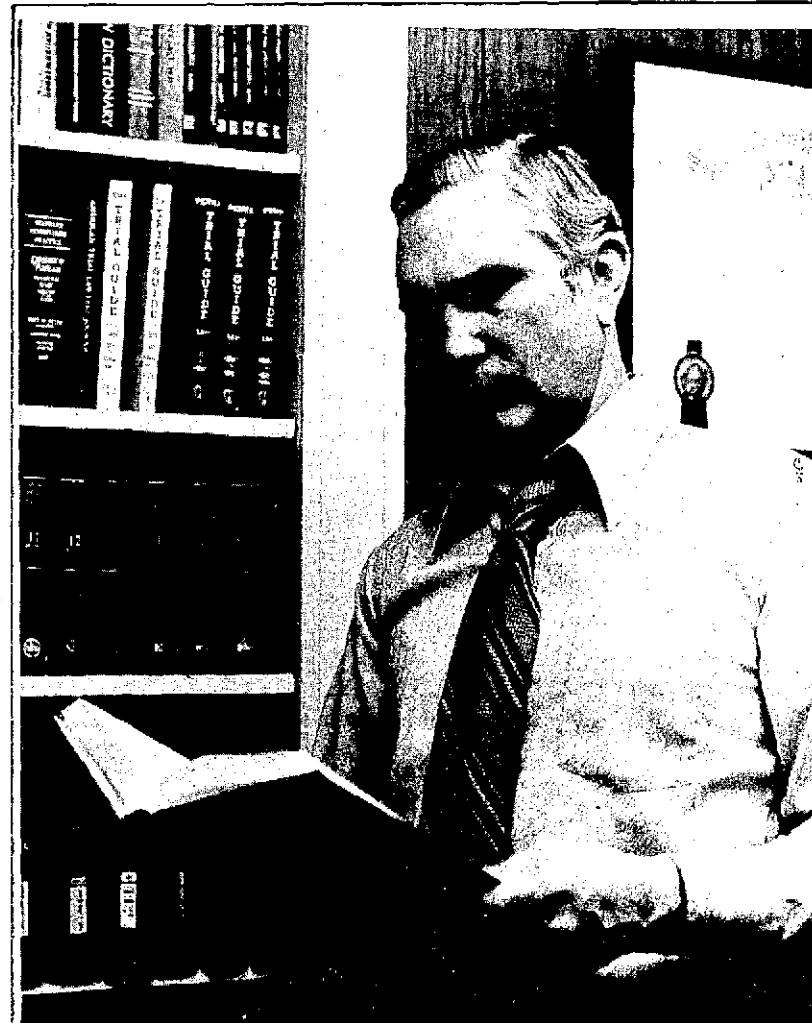

Persons attending the college in these courses are not matriculated students, but formal admission may be obtained by following the prescribed admissions procedures.

Courses taken may apply toward graduation credits after formal admission is obtained.

Strip mining solution

By GAIL NEVINS

STROUDSBURG — A new method of strip mining, "so simple it's horrifying no one thought of it before," has been developed here in Pennsylvania's mountainous soft coal fields. State officials are promoting it as an environmental breakthrough.

Walter Heine, associate deputy secretary of the Department of Environmental Resources, was the source of the above quote.

He notes that the new technique is called modified block cut. It involves strip mining one block of a hillside at a time. After one block is mined, the debris from the second block is used to fill in.

Heine said that this new method could be the key to Federal legislation aimed at controlling strip mine pollution, long a major environmental problem in Pennsylvania and other coal mining states.

In most strip mining today strippers gouge a huge pit out of a hillside, pushing the overburden — dirt, rocks and trees — downhill. That leaves towering, man-made cliffs called highwalls on the uphill side.

Acid mine drainage from the open pit turns clear running streams orange, and debris scattered down the hillside makes it look like a mammoth garbage dump.

All of the problems, however, would be solved under the new modified block cut method the DER official stated.

In further explanation, Heine noted that the material from the first block would be hauled away, used as fill in low-lying areas or saved to fill in the final block. This would all eliminate the need to dump the mixture down the hill.

The material above the coal in the next block, he continued, then is used to fill in the first block and so on all along the coal seam.

The water problem is solved because the pits are not open long enough for acid drainage to take place and the highwall is eliminated, giving the hillside the same slope it had before it was opened up by machinery.

Further good news about the new striping method is the money involved. Finances have long been a point of contention between those who seek lasting environmental benefits and private business, which often cannot or will not whatever the individual case may be) institute change because of the costs involved.

Heine said that coal operators who have experimented with modified block cut have found it to be economical because coal mining and reclamation are accomplished at the same time; a very fine turn of events.

The secretary added that regulations requiring use of the block cut method have been put into effect in Pennsylvania.

This new approach to strip mining is a good example of putting our technology to use for us rather than against us. It is the very thing that R. Etunet Doherty, Director of the Lehigh Valley Air Pollution Control District, speaks about when he says that technology itself is not the culprit of our numerous environmental problems as so often charged. It is, he says, our misuse of it that is to blame.

Opens in the Smithsonian

News reporting honored

WASHINGTON (UPI) — What may be the nation's first hall dedicated to news reporting opened Tuesday in the Smithsonian Institution's Museum of History and Technology.

The new permanent exhibit, named after the late co-founder of Time and Life magazines, Henry R. Luce, will feature a multi-media presentation of the colorful history, important personalities and technological advances of American journalism.

The overall theme of the exhibit, called the Henry R. Luce Hall of News Reporting, is that news is the product of men and machines.

Located between the recently opened Hall of Printing and the soon to be opened Hall of Photography, the exhibit will offer a visually stimulating, highly entertaining and informative look at how news has been gathered and transmitted from colonial times to the present.

The hall's most impressive feature—one surely to be loved by tourists—is a display of vintage television sets which will broadcast major historic news events from 1945 to the last Apollo moon mission.

A visitor will be able to witness videotapes of such historic events as VJ Day in Times Square as reported by Ben Bradlee on NBC in 1945, the 1960 Kennedy-Nixon debates and President Kennedy's assassination as reported from Dallas, Tex., in 1968.

Other highlights include a tape of Walter Cronkite anchoring his first network newscast for CBS a decade ago, and a disturbing visual record of McCarthyism—with the Wisconsin Republican in 1957 accusing newsmen Edward R. Murrow of being a communist.

Another sure to be popular component of the exhibit will be the backup camera from the Apollo 11 lunar landing. The $250,000 moon camera will be demonstrated once a day and visitors will be able to see themselves on the original monitors built by Westinghouse Corporation for the space center in Houston.

Peter Marzio, designer and curator of the hall, said the exhibit was designed to bring the sounds and animation of news coverage to the viewer. The exhibit was installed in the museum with a $250,000 grant from Time Inc.

Marzio said he has attempted to use color and audio-visual aides to convey the vitality of news to the visitor while also providing an historical background to show how journalism has helped shape American civilization and technology and how, in turn, American civilization has been shaped by what people read, hear and see as news.

The University of Chicago trained historian said, "Many journalists told me an exhibit like this just could not be done."

The exhibit also included an historic look at newspapers, radio broadcasts and newscasts as they have evolved into their present journalistic styles.

Rare newspapers and photographs will be displayed on the walls of the hall tracing the development of newspaper technology, and a continuous slide show will display famous mastheads and logos and old-time advertisements.

Transcriptions of early radio broadcasts will be played on vintage radios and continuous newscast shows will run in a 1930's Trans-Lux newscast theater built from parts of actual theaters in New York and Washington.

The hall is truly an exhibit with something for everyone interested in media from historians to just plain tourists, but it focuses on more than the various facets of news reporting and attempts to deal with some 250 years of development in the way news has been reported.

The mezzo soprano said she started concertizing with German, French, Italian and Spanish songs—the classic repertory. Then began finishing concerts with Indian songs.

Audiences liked them and she expanded the Indian group. Now, she has a repertoire representing 20 to 25 tribes, she said, and "I'm always adding." Included are the Cherokee, Navajo, Zuni, Apache, Hopi, Cheyenne, Sioux, Ojibway and Chippewa—ceremonial and religious songs, love songs, work and play songs, lullabies, and nature songs about the sun, the wind and rain. Most are from the 18th and 19th centuries.

Miss Casella's full first name is Ho-Te-Ma-We, Indian for mockingbird. She said Indians don't necessarily name a child when it is born but may wait for some trait or event to give the name special meaning.

"I'm told I sang before I could talk," she said. "So, the mockingbird." She's shortened it now to Hote (pronounced Ho-Tay).

The artist was born in San Antonio, Tex., of a Cherokee father and mother of Spanish and Italian ancestry. Her parents moved to Los Angeles while she was a toddler.

She studied music with private teachers in both Los Angeles and New York and attended the University of Southern California and the

Breakdowns plague atomic power plant

By THOMAS EHRICH
Dow Jones-Ottaway Service
MILLSTONE, Conn. — Despite its deceptively pastoral setting, this seacoast town near Long Island Sound is very much part of the atomic age. Far down one of its back roads sits a hulking nuclear power plant capable of churning out enough electricity to supply a city of 600,000 at a cost far below that of most conventional plants.

The Millstone Point power station is very much part of the atomic age in another way, too: It doesn't always work. From last September to March of this year, in fact, the $103 million facility owned by Northeast Utilities didn't run at all.

First, seawater mysteriously seeped into Millstone's reactor, corroded hundreds of parts and forced a shutdown. While fixing that, people at Northeast discovered some unrelated mistakes made when certain key parts were first installed.

And while these were being remedied, the dismayed utility people learned they had been shipped some defective replacement gear by a supplier, General Electric Co.

By the time it was finished, Northeast had a repair bill exceeding $10 million. And the electric power industry had yet another sign that nuclear power plants so far aren't all they were originally cracked up to be.

Indeed, their unreliability is becoming one of their most dependable features. The incredibly complex facilities are plagued by breakdowns that experts blame on faulty engineering, defective equipment and operating errors.

Failures range from hour-long annoyances to months-long shutdowns. Repair costs often run into millions of dollars, and some utilities stoically shell out up to $200,000 a day for replacement electricity to distribute to their customers in the meantime.

For example within the past year, in addition to the Millstone fiasco, a routine 10-week refueling at a Wisconsin Electric Power Co. plant grew into a five-month slowdown for turbine and steam-generator repairs the company says were to correct design mistakes. A Yankee Atomic Electric Co. plant in Rowe, Mass., needed a six-month, $6 million repair job when some bolts failed in the reactor core. And a steam valve blew at a Virginia Electric Power Co. plant killing two workers. Another steam line ruptured at a Florida Power & Light Co. plant, apparently as a result of an engineering fault, and two other plants had to have defective fuel replaced. Operating licenses of six reactors were restricted because of fuel problems.

So far, only about 4 per cent of the nation's power comes from atomic plants, so such breakdowns have caused no blackouts yet. But in the future, more and more power will be coming from nuclear stations—as much as 50 per cent by the year 2000—and then failures could be traumatic not only for utilities but for consumers as well.

Already, this unplanned downtime is a big factor keeping nuclear stations from contributing as much electricity to utilities as had been projected. For example, Louis Roddis, president of Consolidated Edison Co. of New York, told a recent industry conference that the 18 longest-running U.S. nuclear plants averaged only 61.9 per cent of their potential output through last Sept. 30. Few came close to 80 per cent, but three of these subsequently broke down. Eight of the 18 were delivering about 50 per cent of the power they were theoretically capable of.

By contrast, most economic studies that led utilities to go to nuclear plants in the first place assumed reliable delivery of 80 per cent or more of a plant's potential power. A few even projected 90 per cent. This apparent gap between projections and reality has led some, such as Roddis, to question the validity of these previously unchallenged assumptions.

The atomic process seemed very simple. A conventional power plant produces electricity by burning coal, oil or natural gas to boil water. The steam then spins a turbine generator. A nuclear reactor also uses a steam-driven turbine, but it gets its heat from nuclear fission, or splitting of uranium atoms contained in pencil-thin rods.

Lured by the low cost and comparative abundance of nuclear fuel, utilities jumped on the nuclear bandwagon. Reactor makers urged them on with "turn-key" contracts that promised complete, ready-to-go plants at attractive prices. Reactor size soared. After building a few small units, utilities jumped quickly to reactors more than 10 times the size of the first Shippingport unit. Soon, "The reactor manufacturers and utilities were all grossly overcommitted," says Milton Shaw, director of reactor development for the Atomic Energy Commission.

Now, utilities are "going to

Panama in no hurry for new canal treaty

By ALAN RIDING
London Financial Times —UPI

PANAMA CITY—Despite the impassioned rhetoric of the United Nations Security Council meeting in Panama last March, the Panamanian government seems in no apparent hurry to reach agreement with Washington on a new canal treaty.

The mood of the meeting was also unusually bitter, with frequent sharp exchanges between U.S. Ambassador John Scali and Panama's Foreign Minister Juan Antonio Tack.

Panama felt, however, that it had achieved its aim of drawing world attention to the canal issue and to the highly-visible United States presence in the heart of its territory.

As Tack put it in the final session in Panama City on March 21:

"The United States vetoed the Security Council, but the world vetoed the United States."

According to reliable sources, the Panamanian government believes that it can win new concessions by protracting its negotiations with the United States, particularly if the canal problem is converted in the meantime into a Latin American and perhaps even Third World propaganda issue.

Panama is also aware that this is not a good time to seek ratification by the U.S. Congress of any new canal treaty that appeared to weaken Washington's control over the waterway and the 500-square-mile Canal Zone.

To judge by the special Security Council meeting on Latin American problems, which was dedicated almost exclusively to the canal issue, Panama and the United States would appear to be moving rapidly towards a confrontation.

Panama won the support of 13 of the 15 Council members for a resolution calling for a new treaty that would give Panama "effective sovereignty" over the canal and the Canal Zone. But the United States cast its third-ever United Nations veto to defeat the proposal.

The basic issues at stake are simple.

In 1903, the United States helped Panama break away from Colombia and gain independence in exchange for a treaty allowing the United States to build a canal across the isthmus. The United States was given control "as if it were sovereign" and "in perpetuity" over the waterway and a strip of land roughly five miles on either side of the canal.

To judge by the special Security Council meeting on Latin American problems, which was dedicated almost exclusively to the canal issue, Panama and the United States would appear to be moving rapidly towards a confrontation.

Panama won the support of 13 of the 15 Council members for a resolution calling for a new treaty that would give Panama "effective sovereignty" over the canal and the Canal Zone. But the United States cast its third-ever United Nations veto to defeat the proposal.

Dear G.M.: Your husband should not allow the kids to louse up a wonderful opportunity. I have a hunch that if he sacrificed the year abroad for them, nothing would be gained by it. Moreover, he'd harbor the resentment for a long time to come. And so would you. My advice is to borrow the money and take them all.

I'm a "yakking housewife" who spends a good part of my day "doing things" for women who work — like taking care of their dry cleaning, accepting packages, walking dogs, picking up children at school.

I am the only woman on this block who is home all day and I have to yak on the phone at least an hour every night to relay messages and tell them what went on in THEIR homes that day. Please sign me.

(A.) It is unwise to accept hearsay evidence as fact. When possible, you should get facts from the source. In this case, the source was your boy friend, or former boy friend.

When he asked you to go to the beach with him, you should have gone, and you should have talked with him there, quietly and calmly, about what your friends had told you. Then you should have asked him what the truth was.

This would have given him a chance to tell you whether there was any truth in what they said, and if so what the facts were.

Give him a chance now. Call him and tell him you are sorry you started a fight. Tell him you would like to talk things over with him if he wants to.

He may say no, but I believe he will say yes.

Opening lead — nine of hearts.

Generally speaking, it is unwise to underlead an ace on opening lead against a suit contract. But Miles has never been a stickler for rules, and on this occasion he exercised his God-given right to do as he pleased.

His timing proved to be absolutely perfect when declarer covered the nine with the ten, which lost to the jack. East shifted to a club and West, upon taking the ace, returned a club to South's jack.

Declarer — proceeding under the delusion that East had the A-Q-J of hearts and that West had to have the K-J of diamonds for his opening notrump bid — led the queen of diamonds and confidently finessed when Miles followed low.

At this point the roof caved in. East won the queen with the king and returned a heart to partner's ace. West returned a club, ruffed by West to produce the fifth trick for the defense, and East returned a heart which West ruffed with the jack to put South down two.

Underleading aces on opening lead is a distinctly precarious practice, but if you pick the right time and place to test your luck, who knows? — you too may wind up with your name in the paper.

This extraordinary result came about in a perfectly logical manner after West (Marshall Miles, California star) chose the irregular lead — nine of hearts.

If you look at all four hands, it is clear that declarer must finish with either nine tricks or ten, depending on whether he loses one trump trick or two.

But when the hand was played in the national men's pair championship, declarer made only seven tricks and wound up going down two for a loss of 200 points.

This extraordinary result came about in a perfectly logical manner after West (Marshall Miles, California star) chose the irregular lead — nine of hearts.

Just Between Us—

We probably won't be so aware of leaves again until they begin to turn color in the fall. But right now they are so young, so new, so green that every time we look out a window they astonish our eyes in to seeing them.

Especially at dusk when the very air takes up a greenish cast or at mid day when they cast a distinct shadow at our feet. That's one thing we'd miss, I suppose, if we lived in a climate of perpetual summer.

Girls plan N.Y. trip to theatre

STROUDSBURG — "How to Visit the Theatre" is something 35 ninth grade Cadette and Senior Girl Scouts are learning something about.

On Saturday, May 19, they will go to New York City where they will visit the Metropolitan Museum of Art, see the matinee performance of the Broadway musical "Sugar" and have dinner at the famous Italian Restaurant, Mama Leone's.

It is one of a series of "how-to" activities sponsored by the Scranton-Pocono Girl Scout Council.

A pre-planning session for the trip was held in March. The girls were divided into committees responsible for a specific part of the arrangements.

Linda Harmon and Kim Irwin of East Stroudsburg were chairmen of the transportation committee. Beverly Ball of Lake Ariel was chairman of the committee to arrange reservations at the restaurant. The ticket committee found their first choice was sold out until July. The budget committee had to keep all activities within budget limitations.

With the problems solved and arrangements made final, they are ready to test how well they have learned how to visit the theatre.

Kennel club to hold show on fairgroundsWest End Bureau

GILBERT — The Pocono Mountain Kennel Club of Stroudsburg will sponsor a match show and obedience trial on Sunday, May 13 at the West End Fairgrounds in Gilbert.

The judging will start at 11 a.m. with the junior showmanship contest. In this event the handlers and their expertise are judged, rather than the quality of the dogs, according to Katherine Fish, corresponding secretary of the kennel club.

The breed judging, in which dogs will be judged on how well they conform to breed standards, will begin at 12:30 p.m. At the conclusion of this event, awards for best puppy and best adult in the match will be awarded.

The obedience trials will begin at 11:30 a.m. in an area adjacent to the breed rings. In this category, dogs are judged on how well they perform prescribed routines.

Points are awarded to each dog for his individual performance and at the conclusion of the trials, the highest scoring in obedience award is presented.

More information on the show can be obtained by writing to Mrs. Fish at 1099 Wallace St., Stroudsburg, Pa. 18360.

Q. Where could I buy baby ducks?
R.M., East Stroudsburg R.D.3

A. Contact Boyd Smith at Stony Ledge, Kunkletown R.D. 2. Phone 215-381-3612. He's a West End Fair director—and has a duck or two as well.

Q. I returned a special watering can to Fischer Greenhouse Jan. 28, requesting a refund since the item didn't meet my standards. Company literature says this is permitted "if not delighted." But all I've received is credit. Why?

S.A.B., Stroudsburg

A. Clerical goof. Refund for $12.50 will reach you within two weeks, from the Linwood, N.J. establishment.

Q. For the past month, I've tried to get someone to clean my gas furnace, but can't find a person. Our company, Stroudsburg Gas, says they won't service it; neither will the Stroudsburg Furnace Co. or several plumbers. Who can assist me?

M.C., Stroudsburg

A. The Public Utility Commission official from the gas safety section contacted the company; was assured matter would be taken care of. Company did clean furnaces free at one time. But it doesn't now due to lack of manpower, PUC says, and doesn't have to under PUC rules, which state the company is responsible for furnishing safe and adequate service. Other companies would be reluctant to clean the equipment for insurance reasons.

Q. I'm insured through Union Fidelity Life Insurance, which doesn't seem to want to pay a hospital bill for me. I've written and called several times, but had no success in getting action Can you?

M.D., East Stroudsburg

A. Rest easy. Customer representative Lois Lee will have called you before you read this. Your claim is being processed for hospitalization from Jan. 3 to Feb. 13.

Q. On rural mail deliveries, is the mailman required to bring a parcel post package to the house if it's too large for the mailbox and the weather is inclement?

E.M.G., Tobyhanna

A.N.O. The carrier is required to blow his vehicle's horn, wait a "reasonable" time period, and then write a notice informing the patron the package is too large. The patron can then go to the post office for the package, or indicate on the notice when it should be delivered.

Q. I purchased a seven piece dining room set from B.J. Smith in Scranton about a year and a half ago. The first six months, three of the chairs came apart at the seats. I wrote the company ($318 doesn't come easy) and they said they'd stand by the product, asking why the store hadn't looked into the complaint. After a letter from the company, Atlantic Furniture Products, and correspondence with me, I only have three bad chairs and no satisfaction. Can you help?

R.L., Cresco

A. Since the store hasn't resolved the matter, the company will. Three sets of seats and backs will be sent to you — free. The Baltimore company said it wasn't kidding about standing behind its product.

Open space assessment may hurt county

By GARY GROSSMAN
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — Open space assessments in Monroe County could jeopardize school subsidies and result in unequal taxation according to market value.

"Too much land under covenant could nullify the purpose of the revaluation program," warned Monroe County Chief Assessor William Fetherman in a report certifying the 1973 county assessment to the State Tax Equalization Board (STEBC).

The state board has indicated school subsidies will "not be cut if our new assessment is within a 22 to 25 per cent range in their analysis," Fetherman stated.

The Cole-Layer-Trumble (reassessment consultants) appraisal shows a 23.96 per cent figure for the county.

"This figure is within range, indicating that the recent revaluation on a mass appraisal basis was meaningful and correct," Fetherman added.

The tax burden "is now distributed more evenly and equalization according to market value has been accomplished," the report states.

Taxpayers clamoring over the increased assessments on their land have been pressing for implementation of the state Open Space Assessment Act, allowing special tax rates for landowners willing to enter agreement with the county.

to enter agreement with the county.

Faced with mounting pressure, the county commissioners are seeking a means to implement the open space law in Monroe County.

Without application forms even available yet, some 85 county landowners have indicated they "want in" if the open space program comes through.

Increased assessments can be attributed to increased land values used in the revaluation, showing the value of property has almost doubled county-wide since the last major reassessment.

Fetherman warned "any reduction of the assessment on land can have a two-fold effect on the taxpayers of Monroe County."

In short, increased tax millage in either case.

Fetherman's report lends credence to the scattered opponents of the open space program who contend it will unbalance an equalized tax system according to market values.

"The original intent of the open space act (Act 565) was to create open space in suburban areas of Pennsylvania cities, and not to be used as a means for tax breaks for those who qualify under planning and the signing of a covenant with a super-agency."

Similar laws used in other states, Fetherman added, "have proven to be tax havens for some and tax burdens for others."

According to the report, the county commissioners appear to be faced with possibly upsetting their $228,000 revaluation program by overzealous use of open space assessments, or facing irate taxpayers by letting the reassessment stand.

Rec area planning for 4 million visitors

NEWTON, N.J. — Planning for visitation to the Delaware Water Gap National Recreation Area (DWGNRA) is being based on four million annual visitors rather than the previously expected 10.5 million, a park spokesman said Friday.

Speaking before the executive committee of the Tocks Island Regional Advisory Council (TIRAC), Peter DeGelleke, parks superintendent, said the four million visitors a year "can be handled by existing roadways."

TIRAC directors, most of whom are governmental officials from counties in the Tocks project area, expressed concern about support facilities.

Noting Gov. William Cahill of New Jersey objected to the project without additional highways, DeGelleke said the scaled-down four million figure could be served by existing roads.

As the park area "slowly accumulates" facilities, DeGelleke said the impact of visitation will be monitored.

"We must face the reality that 12,000 acres of water is going to draw a lot of people,"

DeGelleke said. If the dam is not built, however, only 2,400 acres of water, the present size of the Delaware River, Judging from the experience at Bear Mountain Park in Orange County, New York, DeGelleke said admittance to the park could be curtailed if visitation grows beyond capacity of available facilities.

With 10 sites open in the park already, he said 880,000 people were drawn to the DWGNRA last year.

DeGelleke said the park is not now viewed as a "generator" of visitation but as "an added attraction" for people already visiting the area.

The possibility of discharge was another of Cahill's seven objections to the dam project voiced last September. Marron said he will know by June whether money for the study is available.

Bangor defeats Cardinals to tie for second place

SWIFTWATER — Bangor spotted Pocono Mountain five runs before erupting for nine in the third inning Friday as the Slaters took a 10-7 baseball victory.

The win tied the Slaters with idle Nazareth for second place in the Lehigh-Northampton League's Northern Division.

Stroudsburg, Bangor and Nazareth are 6-2.

Pocono Mountain, now 1-7 in the league, scored five runs in the first inning, two of them by Jim Fallenstein.

The Slaters, who collected seven hits in the game, came back with nine runs in the third on six hits including a pair of doubles by Mike Falcone and Mike Moser.

Pocono Mountain, which got only four hits in the game, came back with a run in the fourth inning to close the gap to 9-6. Both teams traded runs in the seventh inning.

Moser picked up the win in relief of Bob Bush. Starter Mike Bartell was tagged with the loss.

The walk to Bangor came about, Staples said, with his lack of familiarity with the Bears' lineup.

"I relied mainly on my curve balls," the senior pitcher said. "When I went to 0-2 on a hitter I kind of pushed off on my fast ball."

Despite being played in temperatures in the mid-40s and in a sometimes light drizzle, the weather didn't seem to bother Staples.

"I felt real good out there," he explained. "The weather didn't bother me at all. In fact, I felt a little stronger at the end."

The walk to Bangor came about, Staples said, with his lack of familiarity with the Bears' lineup.

"I'm not too good pitching to left-handers," he explained. "If I know there are left-handers in the lineup, I'll work on my screwball before the game. But I didn't know they had a left-hander and I threw him fast balls."

"But I was a little more careful with the second left-hander and I got him." Joe Harrison, a left-hander, pinch hit to lead off the second and was called out on strikes. Staples struck out seven.

The Bears, who saw the last 13 men go out in order, hit only two balls to the outfield. The first, in the second inning, was the only thing close to falling in for a hit.

Dan Whittaker took the ball off Faron Frey's bat after running in about 25 yards after it was held up by the wind. Second baseman Chico Carmella went into the hole near second in the fifth inning and was called out on strikes. Staples struck out seven.

The winner added another run in the third when Mike Bartleson and Joe Granville singled, and Bartleson stole home. Wallenpaupack scored again in the fourth on three walks and a fielder's choice.

Bartleson singled in Craig Mosher with the final run in the sixth inning. Dalrymple struck out 10 and walked three for the 11-2 Buckhorns who are 5-1 in the league.

East Stroudsburg got the only run of the game in the third inning. Tom Fulton walked with one out and stole second base. Bears' catcher Bob Altemose's throw to second went into centerfield and Fulton went to third. After an infield out, Fulton scored on Charlie DeRenzo's single to left.

The Cavaliers' only other threat came in the second when Whittaker and Pat Boushell hit back to back singles with one out. Both advanced on an infield out, but Zoltan Szercsi flied out to right to end the inning.

Warriorettes in lacrosse tournament

EAST STROUDSBURG — A total of 15 East Stroudsburg State College lacrosse players will bid to follow in the footsteps of two former Warriorettes who made the United States national lacrosse teams when tournament competition begins today.

The East Stroudsburg players will be competing in the Philadelphia College Women's Lacrosse Association tournament at Swarthmore College.

Three college teams will be picked to participate in the National Women's Lacrosse Association tournament over the Memorial Day weekend in Boston. This is where the United States team will be selected.

Last year, Barbara Huston Stroud, Class of 1967, made the United States first team at defense wing and Sue Kidder, Class of 1969, was chosen on the U.S. reserve team at attack wing.

Heading the Warriorettes' contingent will be Debbie Boller (Swarthmore), an all College third team player last season playing first or second home.

A field of 35 players competed in the annual Pocono Mountains Hotel and Restaurant Show golf tournament held Thursday at Tamiment.

Phil Williams, a youngster who's not running for Monroe County judge, shot an 81 on the very long and difficult Tamiment layout for low gross honors. He'll now have his name inscribed on the tournament's permanent trophy.

Ted Vichnicki and Ed Ardery tied for second honors with scores of 89. Calloway winners were John Furness and Lloyd Wynne, with 74s, while Bill Mickey, Tony Fernandez and Dick Coutts tied for third one shot behind at 75.

On June 30 and July 1, the President's Cup tournament is scheduled, with a mixed foursomes event set for July 8 and the Shawnee "Shivaree," a member-guest or member-member event, on tap for July 21.

Qualifying for the championship flight in the annual Club championship tournament will be held July 28 and 29, with the first round in the tournament set for Aug. 4 and the second round, Aug. 11. The final round is set for Aug. 18.

A mixed "A.B.C.D." tournament will be held Sept. 2, with the Governors' Cup event scheduled for Sept. 29. A better ball of partners tournament, with play in both the men's and ladies' divisions, will close the season Oct. 13.

Shawnee Country Club officially opens its season today at 10:30 a.m. with the annual male "A.B.C.D." tournament, a four-man, best-ball event.

On May 27, the club will hold its annual better ball of partners tournament, with play in both men's and ladies' divisions. Following that event, the member-guest tournament will be played June 16.

Cavaliers top P.V. by 1-0

By CHUCK FIERNER
Record Sports Editor

EAST STROUDSBURG — Bob Staples threw the first no-hitter for East Stroudsburg in two years, allowing just one baserunner Friday, as the Cavaliers nipped Pleasant Valley, 1-0.

The victory gave the Cavaliers sole possession of first place in the Lehigh-Northampton League's Northern Division. East Stroudsburg is 7-2 while idle Nazareth is in second place at 6-2.

Staples, a solid left-hander, allowed just a third inning walk to Jim Borger as he became the first Cavalier to hurl a no-hitter since Bob Beck beat Penn Argyl in 1971. Steve Martz no-hit Delaware Valley the same year.

"I relied mainly on my curve balls," the senior pitcher said. "When I went to 0-2 on a hitter I kind of pushed off on my fast ball."

Despite being played in temperatures in the mid-40s and in a sometimes light drizzle, the weather didn't seem to bother Staples.

"I felt real good out there," he explained. "The weather didn't bother me at all. In fact, I felt a little stronger at the end."

The walk to Borger came about, Staples said, with his lack of familiarity with the Bears' lineup.

"I'm not too good pitching to left-handers," he explained. "If I know there are left-handers in the lineup, I'll work on my screwball before the game. But I didn't know they had a left-hander and I threw him fast balls."

"But I was a little more careful with the second left-hander and I got him." Joe Harrison, a left-hander, pinch hit to lead off the second and was called out on strikes. Staples struck out seven.

The Bears, who saw the last 13 men go out in order, hit only two balls to the outfield.

The first, in the second inning, was the only thing close to falling in for a hit.

Dan Whittaker took the ball off Faron Frey's bat after running in about 25 yards after it was held up by the wind. Second baseman Chico Carmella went into the hole near second in the fifth inning and was called out on strikes. Staples struck out seven.

The winner added another run in the third when Mike Bartleson and Joe Granville singled, and Bartleson stole home. Wallenpaupack scored again in the fourth on three walks and a fielder's choice.

Bartleson singled in Craig Mosher with the final run in the sixth inning. Dalrymple struck out 10 and walked three for the 11-2 Buckhorns who are 5-1 in the league.

East Stroudsburg got the only run of the game in the third inning. Tom Fulton walked with one out and stole second base. Bears' catcher Bob Altemose's throw to second went into centerfield and Fulton went to third. After an infield out, Fulton scored on Charlie DeRenzo's single to left.

The walk to Bangor came about, Staples said, with his lack of familiarity with the Bears' lineup.

Time to turn to aged

NEW YORK (UPI) — The time is now for a nation with its array of social actions through the years to turn some of its people power to another neglected group—the aged.

One authority in the area of family and housing development says that "largely as a result of stereotypes, older persons constitute the largest deprived group in America."

"They are deprived in terms of income, health care, nutrition, sex, housing, transportation, acceptance, dignity and even spiritual well-being."

"Perhaps above all else, we often view the aged as having no further need for self-actualization, nor a capacity to contribute further to their world."

The call to action for the aged comes from James E. Montgomery, professor and head of the Department of Management, Housing and Family Development, Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University.

Montgomery outlines his "Magna Carta of the Aged" in the current "Journal of Home Economics", publication of the American Home Economics Association (AHEA).

Montgomery notes that over the years "the United States has shown a great capacity to spawn an array of social movements—the populist movement, suffrage for women, the labor movement and more recently, civil rights and women's liberation."

He lists some of the programs already initiated for the over-65 group, such as Social Security, old age pensions, Medicare and Medicaid, and subsidized housing.

But what's needed further, he says, are extension, coordination and more comprehensive programs to improve their lot.

Needed too are basic changes that will foster "rising expectations" for further development of the aged so that they are richer within, and erasure of the stereotype of the aged as "wells run dry."

Choose: Wives or jobs

BEIRUT (UPI) — There is an official move on in Yemen to compel all government employees married to foreign women either to divorce their wives or give up their jobs.

Beirut press reports said a project of law that would pose this ultimatum is on the agenda of the Shura Council (parliament) of Yemen, a feudal Arab republic where the 20th Century has made little impact.

Among the women who would be affected if the law goes into effect were several Americans married to prominent Yemeni officials, as well as women of German, Czechoslovak, Dutch, Italian, Russian and Indian birth, the newspaper Al Anwar said.

It said this resulted from the fact that a great many of Yemen's better-off youths who study abroad, return to their homeland with foreign wives.

The Yemen parliament debated the law in autumn 1972. But at the time border conflict broke out between Yemen and South Yemen and parliament shelved the law on grounds it might harm Yemen's image abroad at a time when the republic needed support, the press reports said.

At the time the debate was on several religious groups, among them the Moslem Brotherhood, demonstrated outside parliament. They demanded that "infidels be ousted from the Islamic life of our country," Al Anwar said.

It said at the time husbands of foreign wives met to consider what to do if the law were passed. They agreed to refuse to divorce their wives and to remain in the country even if they lost their jobs.

Among officials affected were Economy Minister Ahmed Abou Said and Feisal Sherif, director of the office of Middle East Airlines in the Yemen capital of Sanaa, both married to American wives, Al Anwar said.

It said the threat of the proposed law has had an affect on the daily lives of the foreign wives. "They are seen less often on the streets, dress even more conservatively than before and are completely submissive to their husbands,"

ATTENTION LOT OWNERS! WHY YOU SHOULD CHOOSE A HOME FROM LLOYD'S OF PA.

Many people ask us, "How can you build a 3 bedroom, all aluminum home, for $17,990?" It's a logical question because you generally relate quality with price. With most products there is a definite relationship, but in our case we believe you will be interested to know how we can build and sell our quality home at the low price which we do.

FIRST, we build 20 different style homes. They are not pre-cut, prefabricated but custom built. Our construction crews are thoroughly trained on OUR HOMES, which result in great labor savings.

SECOND, when you build as many homes as we do (We are Northeast Pa.'s LARGEST BUILDERS), we buy a large amount of materials and our savings are consequently great, which is reflected in the selling price of our homes.

THIRD, we are experienced. After years of building in this area we find now that we have the finest and most efficiently laid out home that we can come up with at such a low price.

LASTLY, we try hard. We are vitally interested in our customers and want to build a home that both of you can be proud of.

Check Our Reputation With Your Bank And Attorney. Reserve Your Price and Construction No.
